CAMP EXPLAINS

Forward Pass Will Constitute Chief Difficulty to Side Line Spectator.

In the October Outing Walter Camp discusses the new football primarily from the standpoint of the spectator. The chief difficulty in following the game from the side lines, he anticipates, will be in the case of the for-ward pass. There the spectator must ward pass. There the spectator must see whether the man making the pass is at least five yards back of the scrimmage line and the backfield—except the two ends—at least one yard back. Incidentally he must determine whether the ball goes over twenty yards past the scrimmage line, which is the outside limit of the forward pass. Interesting points to bear in mind are the prohibition of the defensive players against interfering with offensive players who have passed the line of scrimmage until the forward pass has been caught, or, in case of a kick, untill the offensive player has advanced twenty yards into the territory of the defense. The man making a tackle must have at least one foot on the ground. The runner with the ball must not be pushed or aided in any way by his teammates.

In brief, if the spectator expects to understand what is happening on the field, nearly every play has fine shading of restriction which must be carefully watched. As to the developments of the plays under the new rules, Mr. Camp says:

Needs Brains and Agility.

Needs Brains and Agility.

Practically the new rules will put fully watched. As to the developments of the play under the new rules, Mr. Camp says:

Needs Brains and Aghlity.

"Practically the new rules will put a premium upon the active and aggressive back. But it will not do to rely so much upon this as to forget the fact that without the pushing and pulling a light, aggressive back is going to become exhausted in about half the time he would tire when he had the assistance of others to drag him along and save him from hard falls. Hence the captains and coaches had best not bank entirely upon featherweights or sprinters pure and simple. The same is true, in a measure, in the selection of linemen. Here, once more, a really good big man will probably be better than a good little man, but brains and agility are so essential that some weight may be sacrificed for these advantages. It will hardly be necessary to secure star ends as it was of old, because the new end now coming down under a kick has such protection for twenty yards that even the average second-rate player will be able to get that far, whereas under the old rules it took a great deal of the cleverest kind of play for the ends to cover the kicks of his back, especially where one, two, or more men were put on him to watch him.

Will Mean a Kleking Game.

"To start at the basic principle, of himself and others. The danger of this situation is that the officials may ignore certain of the rules, only watching for the infractions which seem to them to be of the greatest import. This will result in a most complicated condition of affairs, because teams may play under one official one week and another the next, and unless all the officials cover all the rules, and cover them alike, there is no telling what the results will be."

Cincinnati, O. September 12.—Pitcher Andy Coakley, formerly of the Chicago Nationals, Louisvillé, Elmira, N.Y., and other professional baseball teams, was to-day placed on the incligible list of organized baseball by the national commission. The ban is extended to include the Paterson, N. J. team, of which Coakley is a member. The action followed complaints that the New York American and National League teams had played exhibition games with Paterson, an examination of the records showing that Coakley had been suspended by, the National Association of Minor League Clubs.

Whether he will be restored to good standing is for this body to decide, according to to-day's findings.

Her friends assert that this is her fourteenth attempt at suicide, but only seven such instances are on record in the police department. Mrs. Simms has never tried the same method twice.
